The Longevity Show Celebrates Its German Premiere: 8th Edition on 11–12 September 2026 in Frankfurt and Mainz

International B2B platform for the longevity and wellbeing economy comes to Germany for the first time — Gala Night at OMNITURM Frankfurt, main conference at Pyramide Mainz

Frankfurt am Main, [Date] — After successful events in Istanbul, London, Tirana and Ankara, The Longevity Show brings its eighth edition to the Rhine-Main region. On 11 and 12 September 2026, the region becomes a meeting point for professionals, companies, investors and decision-makers from the fields of longevity, health and wellbeing. Across eight editions in four countries to date, the series has brought together more than 100 speakers and over 5,000 participants.

The programme opens on 11 September with the Gala Night and the presentation of the Longevity Awards at the OMNITURM Frankfurt. The main event takes place on 12 September 2026 at the Pyramide Mainz and comprises scientific presentations, panel discussions, B2B matchmaking formats and an innovation showcase.

The Frankfurt Edition focuses on clinical longevity, preventive medicine, biotechnology, healthcare investment, beauty, sports and performance medicine, as well as hospitality and wellness real estate. The first keynote speakers are confirmed: Dr. Abdullah Hasiripi (founder of the longevity-technology platform Dripfy) and Dr. Ali Tınazlı (CEO of the German metabolomics company LifeSpin).

„Frankfurt is the financial centre of Europe and offers ideal conditions to bring together science, investment and economic players in the field of longevity. With the German premiere, we are bringing this format to the German-speaking countries for the first time.“

— Yalçın Avcı, Founder of The Longevity Show

Tickets are available now: the 1-Day Pass costs €150, the Gala Night ticket €250 (each plus 19% VAT). Sponsorship packages range from Panel (€3,500) to Diamond (€15,000).
